COSTS $80 TO LEARN.

East Liverpool Man Matches Pennies—Thefts Reported.

It cost Robert Raffe of East Liverpool, Ohio, $80 to learn how Washington sharpshooters match pennies in a one-sided game. Robert, a guest at a Pennsylvania avenue hotel, took a stroll as far as Pennsylvania avenue and 15th street last night, where he met and made the acquaintance of two young men.

A game of matching pennies was proposed and the Ohio man consented to participate. When the game was finished and he was $80 the lower he sought the assistance of the police. He told of how the game was played and furnished descriptions of the sharpshooters.

Safe robbers made an unsuccessful attempt to open a safe in the place of business of William King & Son, 29th and K streets, late Saturday night or early yesterday morning. The combination was broken and one of the hinges removed, but it is believed the burglars were frightened off before they secured any of the contents.

Parker Le Moore, 9 H street, told the police of thefts, including wearing apparel, valued at $66, and $30 in cash, from his room yesterday.

S. J. Holman, 111 1/2 G street, reported the taking of $17 from the cash drawer at his place of business early yesterday morning.

Theft of a green beaded handbag valued at $15 was reported by Edna Green, 1608 15th street.

It is a curious and little known fact that whatever house the king of England visits is in the eyes of the law his own property so long as he remains in it. He is actually the host and its owner is his guest.

Safe robbers made an unsuccessful attempt to open a safe in the place of business of William King & Son, 29th and K streets, late Saturday night or early yesterday morning. The combination was broken and one of the hinges removed, but it is believed the burglars were frightened off before they secured any of the contents.

KEEPING UP WITH THE JONESES—Maybe Pa's Right.

THE CAFETERIA.

We stand with trays and wait our turns, a long, long line of hungry guys, while appetites within us yearn for Hubbard squash and custard pies. Before us there are many jays who fool and fiddle, which is wrong; and so we wait and wave our trays and wish the bunch would move along. One graybeard can't make up his mind between roast pork and shredded veal, and while he doubts the mob behind must all the pangs of hunger feel. One woman stops, a row to raise, because the soup is half-way cold; and while she jaws we clasp our trays and feel ourselves grow frail and old. We all must wait until our turn, in vain are protests and appeals, though while we're waiting we could earn the price of fourteen useful meals. It is a modern way to feed, and modern things, we know, are best; old ways, old times, are gone to seed, old restaurants are but a jest. We used to journey home at noon, before old ways were proven frauds, and there devour the wholesome prune, surrounded by our household gods. And then we'd have a little snooze, to rest our bones so tired and sore, and, having slept, put on our shoes, and go downtown to work some more. But we've forsaken old-time ways, from ancient things afar we roam; and now we stand and hug our trays, and wait until the cows come home.
